another simple vc strategy that's been making ripples in the 2k community over the last several hours leverages a current gen court issue this glitch is most effective on the 10k vc courts although it may be used on any court if you only want to get a tiny reward given wayne's diminutive stature he stands just 5'5" it's hard to see many gamers actually using him much in competitive game action 2k might have been able to boost his stats enough to get him dunking but using a 5'5" guard is just asking to be blocked near the rim and his margin for error on jumpers won't be great it can be quite a grind i'm not going to lie but it does feel really rewarding because you earned it by just playing and of course this doesn't stop you from buying some if you need them but there are a few good solid ways to earn your coin and help level up your myplayer one particular way is going to feel super obvious but is most definitely effective so without further ado let's jump right into the money making the community has coined the name glitch to describe these approaches although they require far more commitment than they look these flaws won't be worth it to you unless you're ready to perform a lot of rinses and repeat for the extra money
