ah yes the circle the loot everywhere the 100 player fight to the death sure it s not super original but apex legends carves out a unique space for itself thanks to its legends fast paced movement and hero abilities they are seen having 7 700 apex coins in their inventory they likely had the 700 before the strange bug with 7 000 free coins added on top of that of course this being only a picture and a post this is something that you will want to take with a grain of salt the image of the character being notified from the game server that they have received the coins is decent proof that this did happen there are users in the reddit thread who have reported that they also experienced this bizarre but rather generous bug as well neither ea nor respawn entertainment have yet to comment it is strange since it has been possible for potentially months now but we do expect it to be fixed eventually once it is brought to the developer s attention both users received free currency however the other player received much less at around 2 150 apex coins that is worth around 20 or so in real world cash while the other player s massive 7 000 free coins are worth around 60 or the price of a full priced new game to build up your legend token and crafting metals tally as quickly as possible there s nothing for it but to perform well in each match you play the longer you survive the more assists and kills you get will all help bolster the total amount of exp you earn in turn this will grant you faster level ups and more apex packs to crack open many times a lot of youtubers launch giveaways for their subscribers a lot of youtubers who are into the gaming niche launch some giveaways sometimes they come up with various gaming currencies and if you are lucky enough you can also get apex coins for free
